1. TAG, YOU'RE IT Send your guests on their way with this Bon Voyage luggage tag by Tepper Jackson. Insert a note like the one shown with your names, wedding date, and a personal message. Its eye-catching design means your guests will never have to search for their luggage again. At least not after the wedding. $13; PlumParty.com

2. BEACH BOUND We all know that save-the-dates set the tone, but nothing says destination beach wedding more than these mini trunks by RedBliss. The "pack light" design gives guests all the info they need to get ready for a raucous weekend in the sand. $19 each; (603) 679-5232

3. HANG OUT Surprise your guests with customized welcome door hangers for their hotel rooms. Here, we've reinvented the wedding itinerary listing all the weekend events plus included a very appropriate "Do Not Disturb..." message on the other side. Get inspired by our design team's model, then head to SpeedySigns.com to create your own with a customizable blank template.

4. PICTURE-PERFECT Commission a custom illustration that captures the essence of your wedding. Use it on your website's title page, on your weekend itinerary—even on your thank-you notes. Wendy DeFeudis of VeryWendy Designs will create one based on a photograph and a personal description. They're fun, quirky, and totally you. Price upon request; visit VeryWendy.com for info.

5. KEEP GUESTS IN SITE Eliminate the need for multiple invitation inserts with a wedding website. There, you can list driving directions, registry details, travel and hotel info, and who's who in your wedding party. Many sites, such as TheKnot.com, offer free hosting and even allow you to add photos or personalized logos.
